Cruise Job Fairs are the leading recruitment fairs in the cruise line industry, bringing together quality candidates with recruiters, all in one location in one day. On the day candidates are invited to hand over their CVs and speak in person with companies to find out more information about possible job opportunities available, gain valuable advice on how to strengthen their CV and interview skills, understand if any further training is required and if necessary, where they can get the training.

Managing Director of Webix, Jay Dravecky says: "If you are passionate and enthusiastic and have the right qualifications or experience, then attending a job fair is the very best way to meet the recruiters face to face and help you to land your dream job on board a cruise ship."
